Yes, as we have said, the past two evenings we are now issuing a Twenty-year Endowment policy which is a better investment than a government bond, or real estate deed. This Policy e-pectally commends itself to Eusiness Men, Corporations and Investors. For illustration take a man 25 years of age who wishes a policy for one thousand dollars. His premiums will be $54.20 per year, $1,084.00 in 20 years. Based upon past business of the Equitable he will receive $1,808.00. If he wishes it continued 10 years longer, we will give him the surplus, $681.00, and give him $54.20 per year for 10 years, and at the end of that period give him the $1,000.00 or at the end of the 20 years we will give him $144 per year for 10 years, or we will give him $131.00 per years of one as he lives. At the same time should he die previous to maturity of bond his heirs will get the $1,000.00 and the surplus it has carned. Drop in and let us explain it more fully—at your age. Seven or eight desks stand just where they most interrupt ocomotion, and to make the navigation still more difficult what should be open space is crowded with chairs and waste baskets and piles of books and workmen and step ladders and carpenters' tools and file boxes and cuspidors and clerks and renovators and rolls of carpet and such like bric-a-brac, with an occasional typewriter or so thrown in. Haley said: "I was steading in the decreasy of the ror by a thunderous sound. I saw a succession of bright flashes from the different buildings. The coal building shook and fell about me. I stood amid the debris, paralyzed and unable to move. How I escaped being killed I don't know. My clothing was torn and my face and Re-ports sounding like the firing of thousands of cannon followed in quick succession. High masses—buildings and earth—were thrown hundreds of feet in the air. Their fall was accompanied by fearful crashes. From where stood it was impossible to tell in what order the mill buildings were blown up, but it was the big middle magazine that exploded first. "I rushed to the nearest tree and hid myself from the destruction. The tree shook as if in a hurricane. I heard the sound of some heavy material falling to the ground. I looked twenty yards ahead of me and saw a stone, no doubt part of the foundation of one of the mill buildings. It was about two feet long and a foot wide. The body of Patrick Dougherty was found this morning in the water of the race along the creek shore, where it had been thrown by the explosion. The body of Green was found just outside the ruins of the magazine in which the first explosion occurred, and, strange to say, was not mangled or burned.
